

(57)

ABSTRACT OF THE DISCLOSURE

Dancing toy lollipop, which comprises one or more movable candy pieces of diverse sizes, shapes, colors and flavors, held by retaining means on a suitable holder, being said pieces free to move independently, inside the user's mouth, or as a simple toy for kids, whenever it is flipped, shaken or revolved by the user's hand, resembling jingle bells or random dancing movements, or even rattlesnakes, being the holder either washable and reusable or disposable, including the optional attachment of a special handle or a rocking base with sound and/or light emission. This toy lollipop can be supplied assembled or unassembled in kits with separate pieces, properly packaged for protection and hygienic handling, simplifying its manufacturing, and adding to the user's amusement and entertainment, the option to assemble the toy lollipop in a great variety of combinations, and providing many alternate and attractive designs for its components.